Creag Meagaidh

Avalanche Hazard Forecast

Issued 22/03/2024

FOR PERIOD 18:00HRS Fri 22/03/2024 TO 18:00HRS Sat 23/03/2024

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE CONSIDERABLE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Saturday 23/03/2024

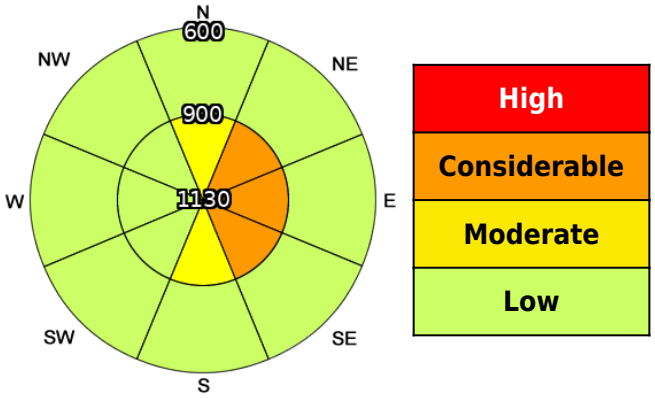
Avalanche Problems

Wind Slab

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Areas of unstable windslab will continue building in wind sheltered locations throughout the period. Most affected will be North-East to South-East aspects above 900 metres. Fresh cornices above these aspects will be fragile and prone to collapse. Below 900 metres fresh snow will lie mainly on bare ground, and stability will be much better. The avalanche hazard will be Considerable.



Forecast Weather Influences

Heavy snow showers will continue overnight and through the day. The freezing level will be around 800 metres. Gale force Westerly winds will ease slightly through the day.

Comments

Avalanche hazard greatest where fresh snow lies on top of the old hard snowpack.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.