Creag Meagaidh

Avalanche Hazard Forecast

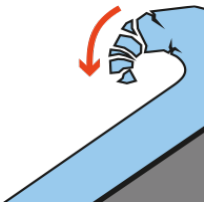
Issued 30/03/2024

FOR PERIOD 18:00HRS Sat 30/03/2024 TO 18:00HRS Sun 31/03/2024

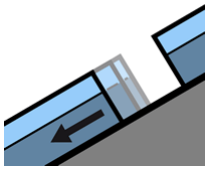
THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Sunday 31/03/2024

Avalanche Problems



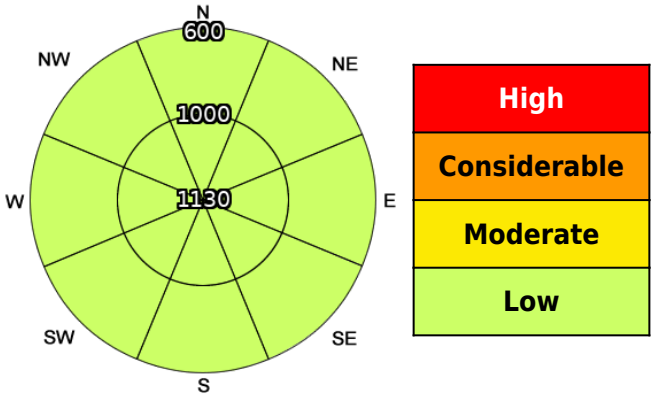
Cornices



Gliding Snow

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Good stability in most locations. The snowpack will remain generally well bonded. There is some limited potential for minor full depth snow slides from low on the crags at the end of Coire Ardair during the afternoon. Falling ice may also be an objective danger at that time too. Remaining cornices will weaken later. The avalanche hazard will be Low.



Forecast Weather Influences

Generally dry though a little light summit snow is possible early in the period. Light South-Easterly winds. Cooler overnight as skies clear. Freezing at or just above summit level during the day.

Comments

Some limited potential for minor full depth snow slides and falling ice on crags at the end of Coire Ardair in afternoon.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.