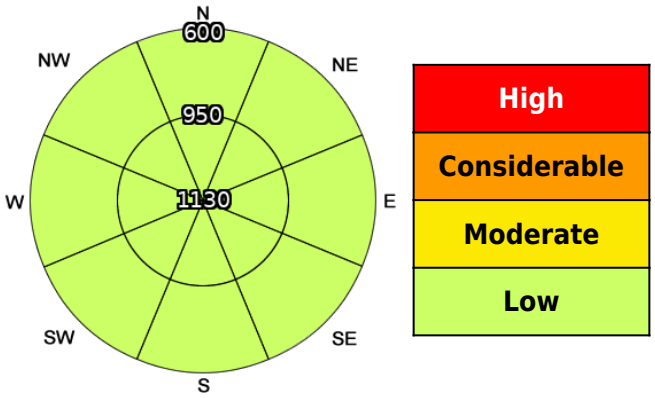
Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The snowpack will remain well bonded and stable in all locations. Snow surface condition varying, depending on altitude and aspect, between firm snow ice, pockets of well bonded old windslab and moist snow. Some thin localised new windslab is possible on selected South to West aspects above 950m. Old refrozen cornice will remain in place over North-East to East aspects. The avalanche hazard will be Low.



Forecast Weather Influences

Generally dry throughout though a few light early snow flurries are possible. Cooler: freezing level varying between 800m and 550m. Moderate North-East wind easing to light.
