

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Saturday 17/12/2022

Avalanche Problems

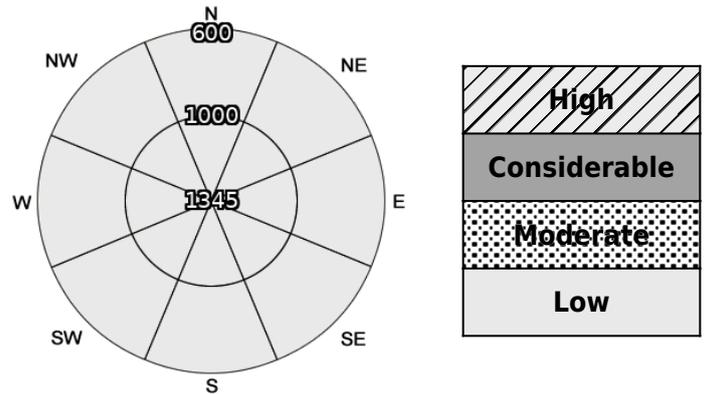

Wind Slab

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Areas of fresh unstable windslab will develop through the period mainly on North-West through North to East aspects above 700 metres. Fragile cornices will start to develop above these aspects. Slopes exposed to the wind will remain generally stable. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate.

Forecast Weather Influences

Moderate to strong South-South-West winds and showers falling as snow above around 400 metres throughout the period. The freezing level will be around 500 metres.

Comments

Freezing level forecast to rise above the summits on Sunday night.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.