

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Saturday 11/02/2023

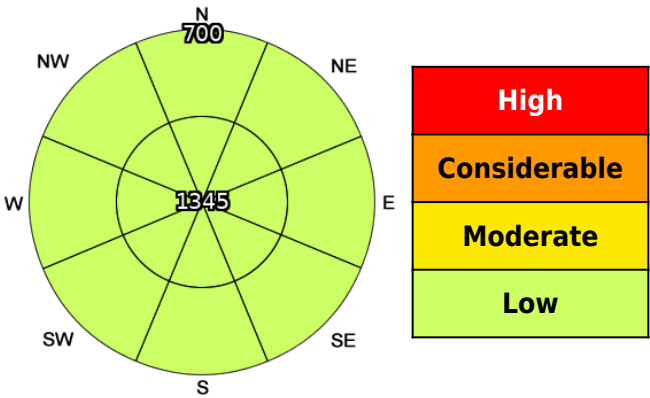

Avalanche Problems

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The wet snowpack will slowly consolidate and stability will be generally good. Greatest snow cover on North to East aspects above 900 metres. Remaining cornices will be prone to collapse. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

Winds ease slightly to become strong South-Westerly during the day. Wet in the evening then mainly dry. The freezing level will be above the summits.

Comments

Weather becoming more settled on Sunday and Monday but still mild.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.