

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Friday 03/03/2023

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The snowpack will remain well bonded throughout. Very hard snow will be encountered on North to East aspects above 900 metres with limited amounts of softer snow on South-East to South-West aspects. Expected to be very icy underfoot. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

A dry day is expected, potentially cloud free in some locations but where enveloped in cloud it will remain freezing. Winds, light throughout, initially North in the morning, backing to the North-North-West in the afternoon.

Comments

Remaining very icy around the hills.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.