

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOWAvalanche Hazard Forecast for Monday 10/04/2023*Avalanche Problems*Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The very patchy and stable snowpack will continue to thaw at first. Any remaining snow patches will firm up later as the temperature lowers. These snow patches will be on high coire rims and gullies. Any new snow deposits will be minimal and insignificant. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

The very strong South-East winds will lower in strength overnight, veer through South becoming moderate West- North-West. There will be light showers thought the period with some sleet and snow on the highest tops. The freezing level will remain above summit levels at first then lower steadily overnight and be around 900 metres.

Comments

Some light sleet and snow showers expected on the highest tops.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.