

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Tuesday 30/01/2024

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Little change is expected in the snowpack. It will remain hard, icy and stable in all locations. The greatest deposits will tend to be on North to East aspects above 750 metres. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

After a cool night the freezing level will rise to around 800 metres during the day. Light South-Westerly winds will increase in strength. It will remain dry.

Comments

Snowpack icy, easy to slip, and the consequences of a slide could be serious in the current conditions.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.