

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Sunday 18/02/2024

Avalanche Problems

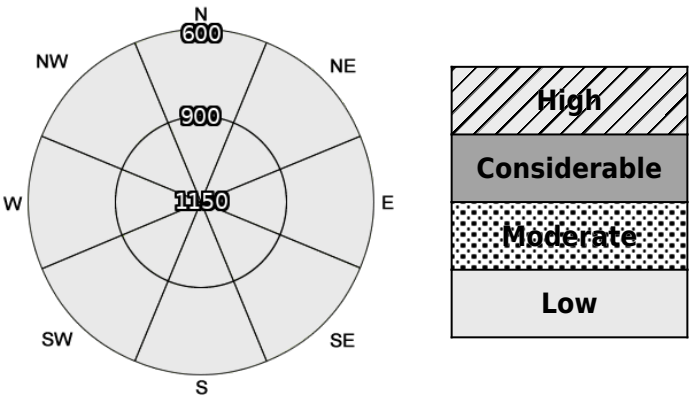

Wet Snow

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The snowpack will generally remain well bonded and stable. Rain may cause isolated wet snow instabilities overnight on very steep slopes, mainly on North to East aspects above 950 metres. At lower elevations there will be further snow loss. Remaining cornices will be soft and prone to collapse. The avalanche hazard will be Low

Forecast Weather Influences

During Saturday evening, there will be rain, at all levels, which will fade out around midnight. Then, occasional light rain showers for the rest of the period. Freezing level will remain above the summits. Overnight, Southerly winds will veer to become Westerly and remain fresh to strong.

Comments

Forecast to remain mild for the next couple of days, with some rain to summit level. possible colder conditions return from around mid week.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.