

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Wednesday 17/12/2025

Avalanche Problems

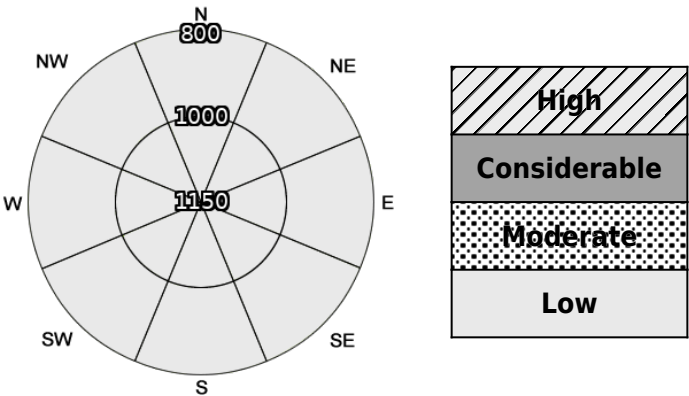

Wind Slab

Wet Snow

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Early morning, isolated areas of windslab will develop in wind sheltered locations on North-West to North-East aspects above 800 metres. By late morning, wet snow instabilities will rapidly develop on steep terrain as the snowfall turns to rain. Gully tops and coire rims most effected. Elsewhere the thin covering of new snow will thaw and diminish. The avalanche hazard will be Low

Forecast Weather Influences

Initially, there will be snowfall around dawn above 800 metres. All precipitation will increasing turn to rain as the freezing levels lifts above the summits. Winds strengthening to around gale force from the South to South-West.

Comments

Wednesday is expected to be wet and windy on the hill.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.