

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Tuesday 23/12/2025

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The remaining snow cover that mostly lies on Northerly to Easterly aspects above 950 metres will be moist but generally consolidated and stable, any remaining cornice remnants will be prone to collapse and with some surface instabilities possible on the steepest slopes. The avalanche hazard will be Low

Forecast Weather Influences

It is expected to be dry both overnight and during the day. Another mild day tuesday with the freezing level well above the summits with light South-Easterly winds.

Comments

A cloudy day on the tops expected, mild tomorrow but getting brighter and colder.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.