

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Friday 26/12/2025

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The patchy snow will remain firm and well bonded. Greatest amounts will be found in gullies and around corrie rims above 950 metres on North to East aspects. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

Another mostly sunny and dry day is expected. Generally it will be cold with some variance in the freezing level due to temperature inversion conditions. Winds will be light and variable from the East.

Comments

Little change is expected. Remaining snow is very icy with short run outs. Slips or trips will have serious consequence.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.