

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Monday 26/01/2026

Avalanche Problems

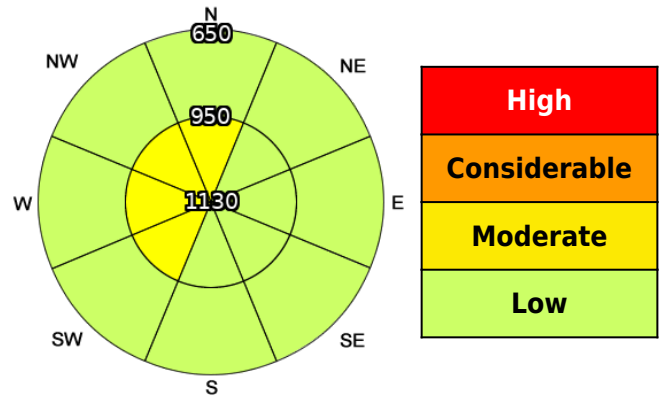

Wind Slab

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Good stability in many locations, especially windward ones where surface conditions will be hard or crusty. Consolidating trend will continue in older windslab on sheltered South West to North aspects below 950m. New localised deposits of less well bonded snow possible in steep and very sheltered locations of the same aspects but above 950m. Minor cornices will be in situ above some of these places. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate

Forecast Weather Influences

Strong South Easterly airflow. Some light snow showers during the day. Remaining cold.

Comments

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.