

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE HIGH

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Wednesday 31/03/2010

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Unstable windslab will continue to be deposited and deep accumulations will exist on South-East through South to West aspects above 600 metres where avalanches will occur. On other aspects unstable windslab accumulations will be present, especially in sheltered locations and gullies. Newly formed cornices will be prone to collapse. The avalanche hazard will be High.

Forecast Weather Influences

Heavy snow will continue overnight and through the day. Strong winds will be from the North, with a freezing level of around 350 metres.

Comments

Another wild wintery day expected on Wednesday.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.