

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE CONSIDERABLE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Wednesday 22/12/2010

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The continuing cold conditions will maintain localised and isolated instabilities in the snowpack. Above 900 metres on South through West to North-West aspects weakly bonded windslab will persist. Sheltered gullies and exit flanks will also contain unstable deposits. The avalanche hazard will be Considerable.

Forecast Weather Influences

It should be another fine, dry day with light variable winds with sub zero temperatures at all levels.

Comments

Another fine sunny day ahead. Water ice forming fast.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.