

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE HIGH

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Wednesday 09/02/2011

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

As the freezing level rises during the day, the avalanche hazard will increase. Areas of unstable snow will be present on many aspects above 900m with wet snow instabilities developing notably on North, North-East and East aspects where avalanches will occur as the day progresses. The avalanche hazard will be High

Forecast Weather Influences

Snow and strong Southerly winds are expected overnight. During the day the freezing level will rise with heavy rain expected all levels.

Comments

Good ice up the Ben today, although conditions deteriorating during Wednesday

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.