

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Sunday 09/12/2012

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The moist snowpack will slowly refreeze and generally stabilise throughout. Some instabilities may remain in the snowpack but these will be confined to the steepest locations on mainly North-East to South-Easterly aspects above 1000 metres. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate

Forecast Weather Influences

Winds remaining very strong Westerly then North-Westerly. Some snowfall expected overnight but dry in the day. Freezing at summit levels at first then lowering to 600 metres in the day.

Comments

Remaining windy but getting colder.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.