

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE CONSIDERABLE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Wednesday 22/01/2014

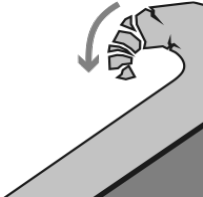

Avalanche Problems

Wind Slab

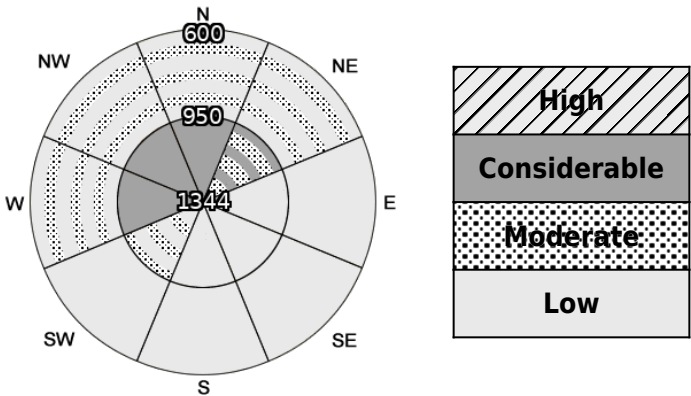

Persistent Weak Layers

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Unstable windslab will continue to form in areas sheltered from the South-Easterly winds. Greatest accumulations will be on steep West, North-West and North aspects above 950m. Localised deposits will also be present in other locations. Wind scoured snow slopes will be generally stable. The avalanche hazard will be Considerable.

Forecast Weather Influences

South-East winds will continue with overnight snow showers dying out during Wednesday morning before returning later in the afternoon. Freezing level rising to around 1000m by morning and towards the summits later in the period.

Comments

Better day in prospect on Wednesday

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.