

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Monday 23/03/2015

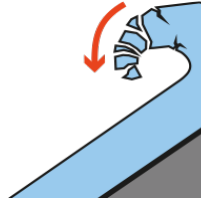

Avalanche Problems

Wind Slab

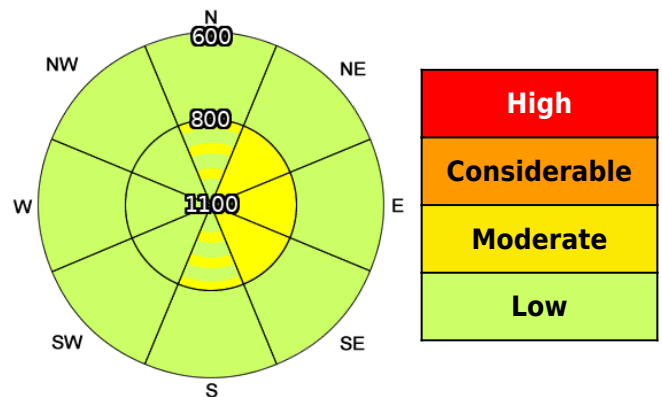

Persistent Weak Layers

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The old snowpack will re-freeze and be much firmer in all locations. New moderately stabilised windslab will accumulate mainly on steep North-East to South-East aspects above 800m. New soft cornices will begin to form above steeper lee slopes. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate

Forecast Weather Influences

Becoming colder with snow showers. Winds will be moderate to strong South-Westerly, later Westerly.

Comments

Looking more wintry for a day or two.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.