Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Avalanche forecasts for the Torridon area have ended for the 2014/15 winter season. We recommend that mountain goers currently venturing into the hills continue to observe weather forecasts prior to their excursions, and visual observations of conditions during their trip. This information is important in making good plans and allowing for flexible decision making. We would like to thank you for support over the winter and wish you an enjoyable summer. with thanks from the SAIS forecaster team
