

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW*Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Friday 18/12/2015*Avalanche Problems*Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

There is next to no snow in the mountains. Any remaining small patches will be wet, well bonded and stable. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

Rain overnight, dry in the morning and wet again in the afternoon. Very strong South Westerly winds throughout forecast period. Freezing level around 1500 metres initially rising to 2500 metres later in day.

Comments

Temperatures reached a balmy 14c in Glen Torridon on Thursday afternoon.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.