

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATEAvalanche Hazard Forecast for Saturday 23/01/2016*Avalanche Problems*Wet Snow*Cornices*Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Overnight precipitation will mainly be light. The snowpack will be moist and generally stable on all but the steepest slopes where wet snow instabilities will persist, these areas will mainly be above 850 metres in sheltered summit gullies exits, and on North-West through North to Easterly aspects. Any larger cornices will remain prone to collapse. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate

Forecast Weather Influences

Rain with snow showers on the highest slopes overnight will die out through the very early morning. The freezing level will remain above the summits. Winds will be generally from the South-West strong initially decreasing later.

Comments

Avalanche debris noted in Coire na Tulaich on a North-Easterly aspect. Cornice collapse and rock fall will remain a hazard.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.