

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Sunday 24/01/2016

Avalanche Problems

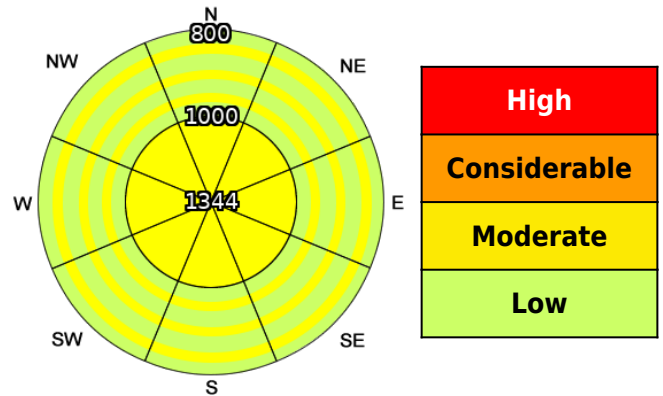

Wet Snow

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Areas of moderately bonded snow will remain on some steep slopes on many aspects mainly above 1000 metres. A period of increased instability will develop in the warm, wet conditions around dawn. Cornices will be prone to collapse. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate.

Forecast Weather Influences

Strong South-South-East winds veering South-South-West. Showers, falling as rain, heaviest around dawn. Freezing level rising to well above summits.

Comments

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.