

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Monday 15/02/2016

Avalanche Problems

Wind Slab

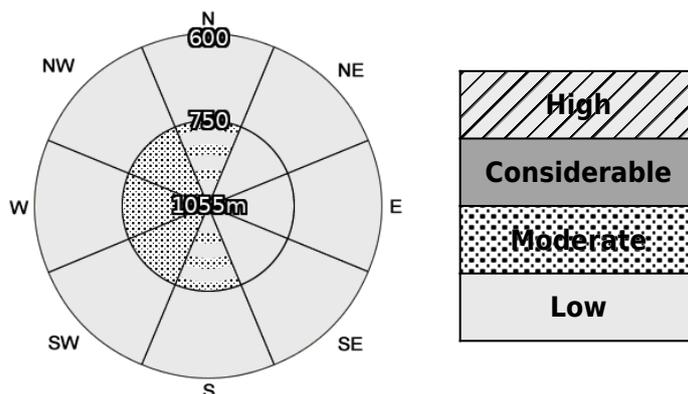

Persistent Weak Layers

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Areas of unstable windslab will continue to build on South-West to North-West aspects above 750 metres with gully tops and corrie rims especially affected. Elsewhere the snowpack will be moderately well bonded with some cross loading instabilities on North and Southerly aspects. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate

Forecast Weather Influences

Northerly winds easing and veering South-South-Westerly later in the period. Showers dying out. Freezing to all levels overnight and remaining cold during the day.

Comments

Another cold, clear but breezy morning. Ice building on many buttresses and gullies. Icy patches on many paths.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.