

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Friday 06/01/2017

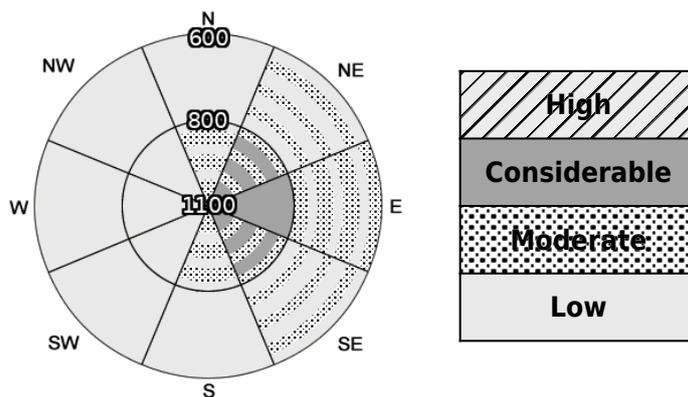

Avalanche Problems

Wet Snow

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The sparse and patchy snowpack will become moist but remain stable in all locations. Larger patches mainly on steep North to East facing aspects above 750m. The avalanche hazard will be Low

Forecast Weather Influences

Becoming much milder at all elevations. Rain at all levels commencing during the morning. Moderate to strong South-West winds easing as the day progresses.

Comments

Principal gully lines more or less complete but some very narrow. Colder today but outlook for the next few days is mild.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.