

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATEAvalanche Hazard Forecast for Wednesday 15/02/2017*Avalanche Problems*Wind Slab*Persistent Weak Layers*Cornices*Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Moderately bonded windslab will be present in deeper accumulations on South-West through North-West to Northerly aspects above 900 metres. Localised instabilities will also be present in sheltered locations on North-East and East aspects above 900 metres. Greatest hazard will be found on steep and convex terrain. At lower levels deeper drifts will be found in sheltered hollows and burn lines. Cornice stability will remain suspect. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate.

Forecast Weather Influences

A dry but cloudy day. Winds will be from the South, initially moderate in strength but becoming strong in the afternoon. It will remain cold on the summits.

Comments

Winds moving to the South but remaining cold on the tops.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.