

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOWAvalanche Hazard Forecast for Tuesday 14/03/2017*Avalanche Problems*Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The patchy snow cover will continue to consolidate becoming firmer later in the day. Deepest deposits will be found on North to East aspects and other sheltered features above 900 metres. Falling ice and rocks will remain a hazard. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

After a mild night with light rain, the freezing levels will drop during the day. Winds will be gale force from the West throughout the day.

Comments

A very windy day is forecast.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.