

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Sunday 19/03/2017

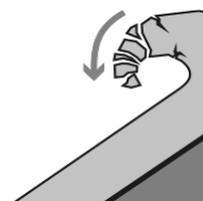

Avalanche Problems

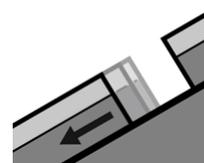

Wind Slab

Wet Snow

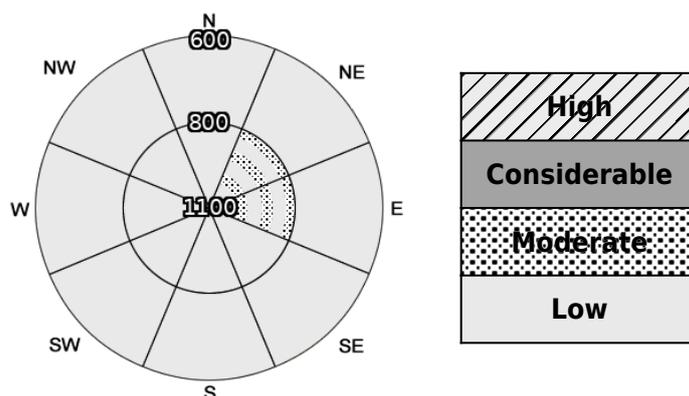

Cornices

Gliding Snow

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Wet snow instability overnight and in the early morning mainly on steep North-East to East aspects above 900m. All remaining cornices will become wet and unstable. Initial improvement in overall stability from morning onwards with onset of colder temperatures. Some localised new windslab is possible on very steep North-East to East aspects above 950 metres by the end of the period. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate

Forecast Weather Influences

Mild and wet at all altitudes overnight. Becoming colder from morning onwards with snow showers. Winds generally Westerly.

Comments

Poor stability overnight after rain and mild temps.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.