

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Sunday 24/12/2017

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The snowpack will continue to thaw at all levels and be well bonded and stable in all locations. Any new windslab accumulations will be isolated and develop on Easterly aspects at the highest levels. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

Strong West-South-Westerly winds will ease through the afternoon. Rain will turn to a brief spell of summit snow before dying out at midday. The freezing level will gradually fall but remain above the tops.

Comments

Very windy and mild.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.