

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Monday 17/12/2018

Avalanche Problems

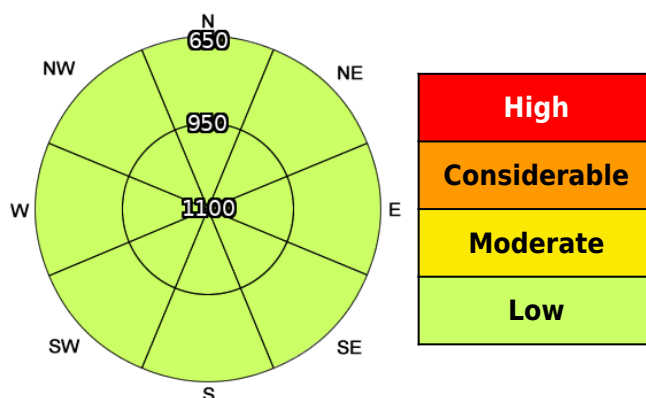

Wind Slab

Persistent Weak Layers

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Consolidation expected in most pre existing snow deposits on North to East aspects, though a little localised instability will persist high on steep lee slopes. Some new, thin and moderately stabilised windslab is possible on North-West to North aspects above 950 metres as winds strengthen later in the morning. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate.

Forecast Weather Influences

Generally dry throughout though a few light snow showers are possible before dawn. Cooler with moderate to strong Southerly winds strengthening later and becoming South- Easterly.

Comments

Quieter weather in prospect overnight and into Monday.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.