

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOWAvalanche Hazard Forecast for Sunday 24/02/2019*Avalanche Problems*Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

The snowpack will remain patchy with the greatest accumulations on North to East aspects above 800 metres. The snow will be well consolidated and stability will be good. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

It is expected to be another mild day with the freezing level well above the summits. It will be generally dry.

Comments

Mild conditions continuing in Glen Coe.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.