

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Tuesday 09/04/2019

Avalanche Problems

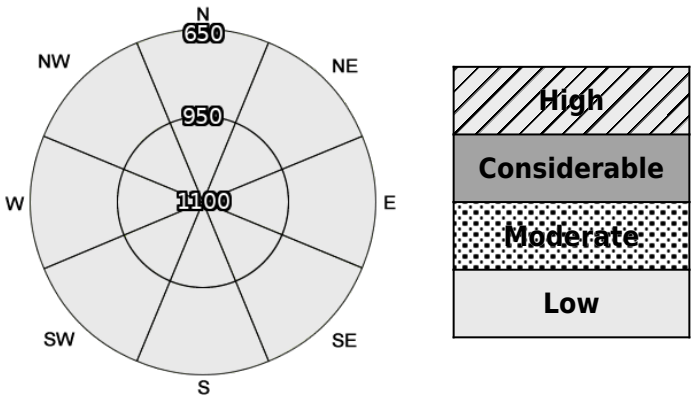

Cornices

Gliding Snow

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Good stability in most locations. Some limited potential for minor full depth snow slides on some very steep North East to East facing crags in Coire Ardair. Any remaining cornices will be moist and weak. Falling ice and rocks in the vicinity of steep crags a consideration during the sustained thaw. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

A trace of light rain is possible otherwise dry. Light Easterly winds. Mild but with a slight cooling trend over the forecast period.

Comments

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.