

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE LOW

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Tuesday 09/03/2021

Avalanche Problems

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Little change. Patchy spring cover. The existing accumulations lie on North-West to North-East aspects above 900 metres. The snowpack at all elevations will remain well bonded and stable. The avalanche hazard will be Low.

Forecast Weather Influences

Weak weather fronts with the occasional light rain or snow shower at summit level; for the most part it will remain dry during the day with hill fog affecting the area. The South-Westerly airflow will strengthen and back Southerly as the day progresses.

Comments

Little change

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.