

THE AVALANCHE HAZARD WILL BE MODERATE

Avalanche Hazard Forecast for Tuesday 06/04/2021

Avalanche Problems

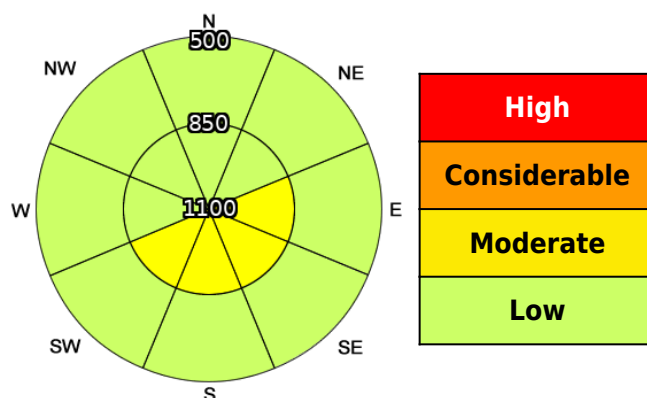

Wind Slab

Cornices

Forecast Snow Stability & Avalanche Hazard

Fresh unstable windslab will continue to be deposited in sheltered areas throughout the period, mainly on East through South to South-West aspects above 850 metres. Accumulations will build throughout the period. The tops of gullies and around coire rims will be most affected. The old snowpack will be frozen and stable throughout. The avalanche hazard will be Moderate.

Forecast Weather Influences

Winds will be strong mainly North-North-Westerly. Light snow showers at all levels will continue throughout the period.

Comments

Unusually cold for April.

View the latest avalanche report

Scan the QR code to view the full Avalanche Hazard Report on the SAIS website.